Criterion	Values
(g) the place has outstanding heritage value to the nation because of the place's strong or special association with a particular community or cultural group for social, cultural or spiritual reasons	After a century of being denied their identity, Tasmanian Aboriginal people reassert their Aboriginality through their cultural places that have indigenous heritage value. The Jordan River [Kutalayna] Levee site is important to Tasmanian Aboriginal people as the place and its stone artefacts provide a connection to their collective ancestors, to their way of living and to their traditional cultural practices that can be handed on to succeeding generations. The place is of outstanding heritage value to the nation because of its special cultural association with Tasmanian Aboriginal people and its exceptional symbolic importance arising from their collective defence of their identity in the face of the threats to their heritage.
